DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The term "slight angle or almost parallel" in claims 1 and 2 is a relative term which renders the claim indefinite. The term "slight angle or almost parallel" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention. It is not clear as to what the angle of the right leg of the inverted V-shaped projections is being referenced, and exactly what the orientation is.

Claims 4 and 5 are rejected as failing to define the invention in the manner required by 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

The claim(s) are narrative in form and replete with indefinite and functional or operational language. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device. The claim(s) must be in one sentence form only. Note the format of the claims in the patent(s) cited.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2 and 3, as best understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Horobec et al. '320.

Horobec et al. discloses a tool for removal of both metric and standard fasteners and nuts, the tool comprising: a socket head having a cylindrical external configuration with an upper end and a lower end and an axis with a first axial length therebetween and with a square recess in the interior of the upper end adapted to receive the end of a ratchet wrench and multiple flat portions on the exterior to allow adaptation of a wrench or socket, the lower end of the socket head being fabricated with a major recess having a generally frustoconical configuration, the major recess having an interior surface formed with a plurality of inverted V-shaped projections forming a plurality of teeth, the apex of each tooth being angularly oriented with respect to the axis of the cylinder, the axial interior of the major recess having a smaller diameter than the axial exterior of the major recess, the major recess continuing through the socket head beyond the projections with a width greater than the diameter of the greater recess at its axial diameter whereby when placed over a rounded off head of a damaged fastener, a portion thereof will extend beyond the projections, and the socket head is rotated with a ratchet motion, the teeth will pull downwardly over the damaged fastener to effect its removal; and the major recess continues through the socket head beyond the projections with a width greater than the diameter of the major recess at its axial interior whereby when placed over a damaged fastener, a portion thereof may extend beyond the projections.
